

HUNDRED TENTH'S LOSSES IN BATTLE HEAVIEST OUTSIDE OF THE REGULAR ARMY COMMANDS

Killed in Action Alone Number 436, While 184 Die From Wounds.

319TH KILLED NUMBER 161

As in Civil War, Pennsylvania Suffered More Heavily Than Any of the National Guard or National Army Units; Second to the First Regulars.

Pennsylvania's losses in the war with the Central Powers were greater than those of any National Guard or National Army division. The 28th Division, named by General Pershing the "Iron Division," led in the number of casualties among the state's forces on the battle front and the 110th Infantry, "Our Own," suffered greater losses than any other command except some Regular Army units, according to figures announced by General March, chief of staff.

In killed, wounded and missing the 110th was exceeded only by four Regular Army regiments in the First and Second Divisions.

With regard to losses of the Pennsylvania troops history repeated itself. Pennsylvania suffered most heavily in the Civil War.

Losses of the 80th Division, National Army, in which are many boys from Fayette and Westmoreland counties, were much smaller than those of the 28th and were exceeded by the 79th, a Southern Pennsylvania National Army division. The total losses of the 80th Division were smaller than the killed alone in the 28th.

The 110th Infantry lost 426 in killed in action. Killed in this section, numbered 151 and in the 320th, 295. These two National Army commands were in some of the hardest fighting of the war but not nearly so long as the 110th and others of the 28th Division.

Losses in the 28th Division included the following:

110th Infantry—Killed in action, 426; died of wounds, 134; missing in action, 373; prisoners, 199; total, 1,132.

111th Infantry—Killed in action, 362; died of wounds, 114; missing in action, 214; prisoners, 24; total, 714.

112th Infantry—Killed in action, 272; died of wounds, 92; missing in action, 152; prisoners, 143; total, 661.

167th Field Artillery—Killed in action, 21; died of wounds, 11; missing in action, 3; prisoners, none; total 35.

Figures on commands from this locality in the 80th Division show the following:

319th—Killed in action, 161; died of wounds, 84; missing in action, 90; prisoners, 34; total, 134.

320th—Killed in action, 208; died of wounds, 71; missing in action, 112; prisoners, 3; total, 399.

The 28th Division stands second in the entire list in total number of casualties, with 2,839, being exceeded only by the First with 5,248.

It is fifth in the list of killed in action, with 1,544, being exceeded by the First, Third, 42nd and 32nd.

Five hundred and thirty-three died of wounds.

It is second in the list of missing in action, with 1,174, to the First, with 1,782.

It is first in loss in prisoners, 691, being taken by the enemy.

But, as splendid as is the record of the National Guardsmen, the National Army men from this state acquitted themselves as creditably and suffered heavily. The 80th Division, Pennsylvanians, ranks third in the list of National Army divisions. The 79th, another National Army unit with many Pennsylvanians in it, stands second.

Analysis of the strenuous service record of the 28th Division, army officers said, would explain high casualties. The 28th was ordered overseas about June 1, 1918, spent the fortnight of June 14 to July 1 in a training area and then moved up to the front line, taking its position northeast of Parnay, on July 16. From that date until the armistice was signed, with the exception of a rest period from September 4 to September 30, the Pennsylvanians were in the forefront of the fighting.

The colorless files of the guard staff give the following brief details of the record of the Pennsylvania Guardsmen:

"July 25, crossed the Ourcq; July 30, joined Somme drive; July 31, in advance on the Vesle, with Forty-second on their left; August 5-9, moved to Vesle front, relieving 32nd; August 8-30, in advance to Vesle; September 4, advance elements crossed Vesle; Sept. 5, crossed Vesle in force; September 5-7, in action; October 1, moved to Argonne, joined offensive; October 7, in fire offensive, near Chateau Thierry; October 20, moved to Chateau Thierry; November 2-11, advanced in Woerre."

FRANK FREEMAN LEAVES HUN CAMP CHRISTMAS DAY

Occasion is One He Will Long Remember, Letter From Medical Detachment Bay to Parents Says.

Christmas day, 1918, is one that Frank Freeman, 110th Medical Detachment will long remember. There was no turkey dinner or anything of the kind, but on that day he was released from the German camp in which he had been held prisoner since his capture in July at the Marne. Writing to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Freeman of the West Side, he says:

"Dear Mother and all—
"It has been some time since I have had a chance to write you a line for the reason that while I was in Germany after the armistice was signed they would not permit us to write any on account of the country being in such an uproar. They said letters would never go through. But the day before Christmas there was a British Red Cross train leaving our camp carrying wounded back to England. I wrote a card and gave it to one of the boys and told him to mail it in England, so if he did you possibly have it by this time. On our way out of Germany we met an American Red Cross lady who took our names and addresses and told us that as soon as we were out of Germany she would cable our folks at home that we were safe back to our own country again. If she did that you have known for some time that I am in France.

"It all happened on Christmas Day. We didn't get any turkey or anything like that, but that was the day we were handed over to our company and it surely was a fine Christmas present. At the present time, mother, I am in a casual camp. They have quite a few of us together, former prisoners of war. It is a little undecided yet whether we will go back to our division or back to the States but we are all hoping that we go to the States, so if we do it will not be long before I get to see you. If I could just get a letter it would help some for I haven't had one from you for nearly three months. I received only three while I was in Germany. I know you wrote more but that they went astray. I cannot give you any address yet, but I will as soon as I find where I am going to be located."

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman received a telegram Saturday saying their son had been released from the German prison and that he is well.

BAR HOLDS BANQUET

K. C. Higbee and Judge W. H. Thompson Speakers at Annual Affair.

The 27th annual banquet of the Fayette County Bar Association was held Saturday evening at the Uniontown Country club and over 80 members and guests enjoyed the affair. There was only one disappointment to the entire program and that was the inability of Dr. W. Hamilton Spencer, who was on the program to respond to the toast "Law and the Lawyer," to be present, owing to illness.

W. W. Parrish, president of the association, presided, and introduced Senator W. E. Crow who acted as toastmaster. E. C. Higbee of Connellsville was the first speaker, his toast being, "Our Guests and Ourselves." Mr. Higbee's address was an impressive argument as to the necessity of the members of the bar so conducting themselves in their professional conduct as to reflect the highest credit both upon themselves and upon their calling.

Following Mr. Higbee's address, "America" was sung, after which Senator Crow introduced Judge William H. Seward Thompson of Pittsburgh, who responded to the toast, "Government by the People." In his concluding words Judge Thompson paid an eloquent tribute to President Wilson as "the man of the hour," in democracy's fight against autocracy.

On suggestion of W. Russell Carr, a silent standing toast with glasses up lifted was given in honor of three members of the association who died during the past year: Justice S. L. Meserve, R. P. Kennedy and George L. Dawson.

FRANK A. LEIBERGER, FORMER ENGINEER, IS CALLED TO THE BEYOND

Had Been in the Service of Baltimore & Ohio for 26 Years. Retiring Because of Injury.

Following a lingering illness, Frank A. Leiberger, 73 years old, a retired Baltimore & Ohio passenger engineer, and one of the most widely known men of Connellsville, died Sunday night at 7:50 o'clock at his home in West Peach street. Death was not unexpected. He had been failing in health for three years and in hope of regaining his health he entered the West Penn hospital, Pittsburgh, undergoing two operations, one a year ago last January and the other during the following month of May. He gained temporary relief from the operations but soon afterwards neuritis developed. The deceased was confined to his bed virtually all of the time during the past year.

Mr. Leiberger was born at Easton, Pa. April 25, 1846, a son of the late Michael and Crescentia Leiberger. He spent his early life at Easton and for some time was an engineer on the Lackawanna railroad. Thirty-six years ago when the Baltimore & Ohio railroad company was recruiting engineers Mr. Leiberger, with other railroad men, came to Connellsville and continued in the service until 10 years ago when he was compelled to give up his work on account of blindness of right eye caused by a cinder. He was pensioned by the company and since then had lived retired.

Mr. Leiberger was a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Baltimore & Ohio Veterans' association and Trinity Lutheran church. He was twice married. January 17, 1870, he was married at Easton to Miss Mary Catherine Noll. Some time following her death he was married May 7, 1881, to Mrs. Caroline Mentzel. In addition to his widow he is survived by four children, Frank W. Leiberger, Morgantown; Mrs. J. S. Parker, Connellsville; Mrs. J. A. Bralier, Pittsburgh; and Mrs. Ella Grant, Philadelphia, to the first marriage, and one son, Arthur Leiberger, with the American Expeditionary Forces in France, and two daughters, Mrs. J. W. Hanks of Royal, and Mrs. E. M. Mason of Connellsville, to the second marriage. Two stepchildren, Robert Mentzel Leiberger and Miss Adelle Mentzel Leiberger, both of Connellsville, 12 grandchildren and two great grandchildren, also survive.

Running as a passenger engineer on both the Connellsville and Pittsburgh divisions of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad for many years, Mr. Leiberger learned to know a wide circle of railroad men, by whom he was held in high esteem. No arrangements will be made for the funeral until it can be learned if Arthur Leiberger has arrived in the States. Word has been received here that other members of his company have arrived at Newport News.

VALUATION OF COAL LANDS IN FAYETTE GIVEN BIG BOOST

Connellsville is Raised to $850; Lower Connellsville to $750.

INCREASE OF $15,000,000

Is Made in County's Valuation Which Means an Increase of $90,000 in the Amount of Tax to Be Paid; Millage Remains Same; Will Cause Protest.

By boosting coal land valuations in the county, particularly in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville districts, the county commissioners, sitting as a board of revision, have increased the property assessments approximately $15,000,000. Although no increase is made in the millage the revised valuations will increase the amount of the tax to be paid this year about $90,000. The millage for 1919 has been fixed at three mills for coal purposes and one mill for state tax, a total of six mills.

The principal revision in coal land valuation are in what the commissioners designate the "Connellsville vein," meaning the coal in the Connellsville and Lower Connellsville districts respectively. For purposes of taxation during the preceding three years the former was assessed at $300 and the latter at $600 per acre. By the assessment which has just been completed these values are placed to $950 and $750, an increase of $150 per acre in each of the districts. Coal of the Pittsburgh seam in Springhill is assessed at $300 per acre. The Freeport and Sewickley seams, except in the Indian Creek Valley, are assessed at $75 per acre. In the latter district the valuation is placed at $25 per acre.

These revisions are quite certain to be opposed by coal land owners as inequitable and unjust when the commissioners meet with them at Uniontown on March 21, the date fixed to hear appeals from coal companies.

Other appeal dates have been set as follows: Connellsville, First, Second, Third and Fourth Wards, city hall, 9 A. M. to noon, March 12; Fifth, Sixth and Seventh Wards, 1 to 4 P. M. same date. Connellsville township and South Connellsville, city hall, Connellsville, 1 to 4 P. M. March 20.

Dunbar and Dunbar township, Dunbar hotel, 9 A. M. to noon, March 14; Vanderburgh borough, Vanderburgh hotel, 1.30 to 3.30 P. M. March 14. Bullman township, Pensylvania, 10 A. M. to noon, March 12. Bryson borough and Upper Tyrone township, Eureka hotel, 1.30 to 3.30 P. M. March 12. Dawson borough and Lower Tyrone township, Haas hotel, Dawson, 10 A. M. to noon, March 20.

Franklin township, Flatwoods, 10 A. M. to noon, March 11. Perry township, Perryville, 1.30 to 3.30 P. M. March 11. Menallen township, Haddenerville, 9 to 11.30 A. M. March 18.

Obiopolis borough and Stewart township, Obiopolis house, 11 A. M. to 2 P. M. March 25. Henry Clay township and Markleysburg borough, at Joseph Humberston's, 2 to 4 P. M. March 24. Wabasca township, at William Glewinski's, Chalk Hill, 10 A. M. to 12 noon, March 24.

TELEPHONE-RATE CASE

To Be Argued Before Dauphin County Court Tomorrow.

HARRISBURG, Feb. 3.—The question of the right of the United States government to increase the rate of telephone companies operating in Pennsylvania under state charters and public service regulation without approval of the Public Service Commission will be argued before the Dauphin county court tomorrow in the injunction proceedings brought by the attorney general to restrain the Bell company from charging new rates.

The state will ask that the preliminary injunction granted a few days ago be made permanent. If that is done the Bell and all other telephone companies operating in Pennsylvania will be enjoined from charging the increased rates. An appeal is probable in the case.

The contention of the attorney general is that the increased rates cannot be charged until the rates are filed before the Public Service Commission as public service companies are required to do.

MAKING THE LAND CLEAN.

The movement being fostered by the Council of National Defense, having for its object a more general and more intelligent understanding of the subject of social hygiene, is a work of the government in which there is no trace of paternalism. During the war the United States was forced to adopt some unusual governmental functions, with a view to promoting a more efficient conduct of the war program, such as food and fuel control and conservation, regulation of the railroads and other measures showing strong leanings toward paternalism, but health regulation cannot be so considered.

In making the nation fit to fight the fact was recognized that there was very urgent need for the application of correctives to certain conditions if we are to become a stronger, cleaner and more efficient nation. In this direction the United States Public Health Service early gave attention to ridding the Army and Navy from the minors of the diseases of vice, such remarkable progress was made and the results achieved were so beneficial, when considered from every standpoint, that the decision was reached to enlarge the scope of the Health Service's activities by making its peace work to include a nationwide campaign for the eradication of diseases of this character.

"In this endeavor," says the official bulletin "the government is moved by no sentimental ideas or notions of paternalism. Neither is it supplanting the task of the reformer. In the suppression of vice there is work for social reformers, for preachers, educators, the press and for individuals in their capacity as good citizens. By intensive and intelligent work along reform lines these several agencies can greatly aid the campaign which the United States Public Health Service is carrying on. But it is to be understood that the government's campaign against vice is as coldly scientific as the war it has made on rats that carried the bubonic plague to San Francisco, or the extermination of the mosquitoes in Cuba and Panama that carried yellow fever and malaria.

"There is a larger economic than there is a moral force behind the effort of the government to stamp out the disease of vice. What these diseases have cost in the past, in the way of bitter suffering, in reduction of energy, in inefficiency, there is no means of knowing. Whatever it was —and it has been vast—it was sheer waste, and that the nation may be truly strong and free to face the tasks
the future will bring, this waste must be stopped.

"Nor so much is known about the gravity of the venereal disease menace
as will be known in the days to come,
for public opinion is becoming aroused;
the press is realizing that in aiding in the campaign it is serving the public good, and once the light of American intelligence is brought to bear on this dark spot within the nation, the land shall be made clean."

In helping to bring this about there is an obligation resting upon every citizen and agency having a power for public good to forget all notions of prudence and make their force and influence felt in the direction of both physical and moral civic cleanliness.

PHONE-CONTROL AND STATE CONTROL.

Briefly the telephone rate case started in the Dauphin county courts is a contest to ascertain the power of the federal government over intra-state business, says the Harrisburg-Tole-dograph. As such it is of tremendous significance. Upon the decision will hang issues of great import.

We are now to find whether the state retains its power of police rights or whether the national government is empowered to oversee the acts of the state Legislature on matters pertaining to Pennsylvania alone, and in nowise of an interstate character. In effect, the Public Service Commission asks: "Is the United States government to be permitted to step in and run our state government for us with respect to our own local affairs, or does the doctrine of state rights under the constitution still hold good?"

There could be no contest of anthority did the government own the telephone lines, but there is a very grave doubt as to the federal government's legal right to step in and defy state laws regulating corporations characterized by the commonwealth and already limited by state law with respect to what they may and may not do.

Unless the United States Attorney General's Department has a card up its sleeve which it has not shown, Mr. Burleson's phone-control appears about to receive a pair of jolt.

Lifting of government control from coal and coke has not precipitated the expected rise in prices and trade conditions some interests hoped and predicted, and for the very good reason that the operators themselves know something about the control business.

Here's hoping Bro'er Ground Hog was so pleased with the aspect of nature as he viewed it yesterday that he will not be satisfied with less than six weeks more of the same kind of weather.

Proud as Pennsylvanians will ever be of the glorious record made by the 28th Division the regret will be lasting since that more of its fine young soldiers were obliged to make the supreme sacrifice than any other National Guard or National Army Division.

The proposal to make the Constitution of the United States the model for the government of the League of Nations will invite greater confidence in the scheme than anything that has yet been set forth in its favor.

Detailed reports of casualties among the army divisions confirm the earlier and frequently expressed belief that most of the South's warriors did their fighting behind desks in the much over-crowded offices in Washington.

With its list of killed in action exceeding the total casualties from all causes in other units, it is given that the 110th Infantry maintained the traditions of the Keystone state with glory and honor.

With the German military authorities have the courage to publish the casualties of their units which went up against the 28th Division?

STATE SAFETY BODY SPENT $882,129 IN WAR-TIME ACTIVITY

Less Than One-Half of Amount Appropriated by State Legislature.

SALARIES THE BIG ITEM

The Total Being $271,193; Expenses of County and Local Committees Are Next Highest With Expenditures of $201,250; Accounts Carefully Kept.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 1.—The report of E. Morris, treasurer of the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense and Committee of Public Safety shows that the sum of $882,129.16 was expended by that body.

Mr. Morris is president of the Gardner Trust company and a director in many big corporations. In compiling and presenting to the state of Pennsylvania an account of how its money was spent to promote war-time activities, Treasurer Morris employed the strictest business methods. First he secured the services of a high-grade accountant from the Pennsylvania railroad. To guard against any possible errors a representative of the state auditor general's office has spent nearly his entire time in the Philadelphia headquarters, making daily audits of the money spent.

Mr. Morris' report covers the whole period from April 14, 1917, the day the council began operations, down to December 31, 1918, when a large part of the council's activities throughout the state were officially ended.

All funds at the disposal of the committee come out of the $2,000,000, appropriated by the Legislature in 1917
and by it placed in charge of the Commission of Public Safety and Defense, consisting of the governor, the lieutenant-governor, the state treasurer, the auditor-general and the adjutant-general. This commission in turn allots such sums to the council and committees as the members of that commission think proper after due consideration and action upon requisitions made.

Detailed reports have been made every fortnight by the treasurer. All bills over $25 must be approved by the director of one of the fifteen departments of the Pennsylvania Council of National Defense.

The total net income received by the Council of National Defense for the entire period was $392,543.47. The total expenses were $882,129.16. It will be seen that a great part of the $2,000,- 000, appropriated by the Legislature in 1917 remains unexpended. Treasurer Morris makes an interesting point in setting out in his report a classification of expenses as follows:

Salaries $271,193.34
Rent 80,858.31
Office expenses 6,521.62
Stationery and printing 95,442.37
Furniture and fixtures 24,019.16
Postage 15,055.97
Advertising 6,021.96
Telephone and telegraph 16,030.44
Expenses of local committees 201,250.00
Camp supplies and expenses of Boys' Working Reserve 37,976.49 Photographic supplies and expenses 3,441.15 Home defense police supplies and expenses 11,547.38
Military supplies and expenses 2,190.43
Naval supplies and expenses 3,322.72
Traveling and incidental expenses thereof 80,928.49
Publicity expenses 4,006.88
Miscellaneous and expenses 20,242.13
Food conservation train, expense of 11,152.95
War kitchens, expenses of 974.23
County federal food administrators, expenses of 22,321.23

Total $882,129.16

High water mark in expenditures for Pennsylvania war activities was reached in October, 1918. For that month, the amount spent was $35,142.
The council's activity in combating the influenza epidemic added considerably to the total.

Heavy Police Court.

Fourteen persons were arrested by the police over Sunday, all paying fines or leaving forfeits with the exception of three, who were given 48 hours by Mayor Duggan this morning. Fines and forfeits collected amounted to $49.50.

Public Arrests Cow.

Patrolman P. M. Rull arrested a cow to East Park yesterday afternoon. The animal had been running free and was damaging property. It was ordered released by Mayor Duggan on being claimed by the owner.

Rippling Rhymes

GENIE ANNIE.

Come, gentle spring, ethereal mild-ness, come! While winter lasts this life is pretty dull. We look ahead with yearning, and with sighs to vernal days and cloudless azure skies. As some worn pilgrim, lashed by wind and sleet, wounded by thorns and dying on his feet, beholds the inn, with windows all aglow, so woe we spring from out our drif of snow. Winter is here. Its methods all are wrong;
winners a frost, it sticks around too long, if it would come and last a week or two, then chase itself to fields and pastures new, we could endure, with Spartan fortitude all it might bring in climate rough and rude. But as a guest old winter has no style; he brings his grim and comes to stay a while; month after month he camps around the place till he becomes a burden and disgrace. Vainly we hunt that he should pull his freight, still he remains, immovable as fate. Long weekends must pass before he goes, taking his first and simple line of snow;
then come spring, with all her roses
red, and at that time we yearning look ahead.

THE BETTER DAYS.

The better days lie just ahead—
Not with the past among the dead.
Our best hours are all to be,
Life's best our eyes are still to see,
And yet men sigh and dwell upon
The joys that were and long have gone.

Wise men deplored, in centuries old,
That men had turned their thoughts
to gold.
And seemed to present glories blind
While treasuring those they'd left behind.
And those that followed grew to yearn
For vanished splendors, in their turn.
Youth hears from sages old and gray
Of many a bygone yesterday.
Yet grows to find that he has prized
Those joys which older men deplored,
And to the youth about his knee
He talks of joys that used to be.

Live not too closely with the past.
No joy is sent to man to last.
Our thoughts and actions pass away,
Preparing for the better day.
And as the months and years are told,
The new becomes the cherished old.

Behold the glories of today
And know them ere they pass away!
Rejoice that now you live to see
As it used not as it used to be.
But under Freedom's skies serene Better than it has ever been.

Special to The Courier.
MOUNT PLEASANT, Feb. 3.—President Blaine B. Coldsmithe will present to borough council tonight a list of names of men whom he thinks will make a live wide awake board of health. The town has been without an active board of health since the influenza epidemic several months ago. A secretary of council will likely be elected to take the place left vacant by the death of A. S. Overholt January 9.

Grate Victim Dies.
John Kukol, aged four years, who fell in the grate at his home at Donnelly on Thursday and was badly burned, died Saturday at his hospital.

Chicken Thieves Escape.
Friday evening about 11:30 Police Officer Millard McCully surprised two men at work in a chicken coop in the rear of the Court houses. When Officer McCully threw his spotlight on the men at work both ran. Just as they reached the alley at the rear of the home of Dr. W. A. Marsh the officer fired two shots in an effort to have them stop but both ran on. One went out the alley and the other turned down Main street. The officer chased him to Diamond street where he made good his escape. The men are known by McCully and the other police who will keep a close watch for them.

Personal.
Mrs. M. Shavley of Greensburg was the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John Mullin, yesterday.

CONNELLSVILLE WINS FROM MUCH "TOUTED" WEST NEWTON QUINTE

Visitors Are Annihilated By a Score of 50-20; Locals' Game Is Improving.

The much "touted" West Newton high school basketball team failed to live up to expectations when it played the Connelville high team here Saturday night, the visitors going down to defeat, 50-20. Connelville took the lead at the opening of the game and never lost it.

The team played better as a single unit than in any previous game. Efforts extended by Coach Bode in preparation for the game bore fruit Saturday when the Cokers opened up and made goal after goal by getting the ball down the floor with lightning like passes.

Jimmie McConnell made his usual haphazard shots from difficult angles and scored 12 goals. Struble "found" the basket and for the first time this season came into the lineups by getting seven field goals. Lyon was not in trim for shooting goals but his foul record was good. The two guards, Moore and Joe McConnell, had only nine baskets scored on them during the game, six of this number being in the first half and three in the last.

The West Newton aggregation was confident of winning from the local quintet but the Coker basketballers were determined to take over the visitors. The West Newton victory made a total of three wins in a week for Connelville, Shadyside and Sewickley having previously been defeated.

A large crowd, which filled the gymnasium, saw the game. The local team, who are only in their second year, have been coached into such a clever playing aggregation that many old time basketball fans are being interested in the team.

The lineup:
Connellville—39. West Newton—29.
Lyon—3. Struble—12. Burkhardt—29.
Struble—12. Burkhardt—29.
Jas. McConnell—1. Grehring—5.
Moore—1. Grehring—5.
Joe McConnell—1. Grehring—5.
Substitutions—Bunco for Struble; Durnell for Lyon; Buttermore for Jim McConnell; Danne for Joe McConnell; Menefee for Moore; Schmitz for Grehring. Field goals—Jim McConnell, 12; Struble, 7; Burkhardt, 5; Lyon, 3; Passaro, 2; Grehring, 2; Landmore, 1; Durnell, 1. Foul goals—Lyon 12 out of 17. Landmore, 9 out of 14. Referee—Wall.

Stung Again.
Two rookies were indulging in the soldier's privilege—growing about his station and how the soldier gets stung for everything.

"I ordered a chicken dinner at a cafe down town and they charged me a dollar and six bits," Bones was saying.

A newsie overheard him. "Say, mister," he said, "I know where you can get a chicken dinner for two bits. A good big one, too."

The soldiers looked skeptical, but the newsie insisted that he was telling the truth. Finally the soldier who had been stung asked where this place was located. The newsie mentioned an address on one of the side streets of San Antonio.

A few days later the two soldiers went to the city and determined to visit this cheap restaurant. They found the address. It was a feed store.—The Bryanet.

Never Broke a Food Law.
A German church journal tells the story of a professor, a conscientious man, who from the beginning of the war made up his mind to give strict obedience to any law that might be laid down by those placed above him.

Most scrupulously did he observe all the food regulations. Never once did he give way to "hungering" and the landstine food trafficker knew him not. He and his family were poorly clad, and often went to bed hungry, but his conscience remained clear and his honor bright.

"Good Lord, is this man still alive?" incredulously exclaims Vorwaerts of Berlin, the Socialist organ.

The Reason.
"That Mrs. Pagers is such a dirt. I should think her husband might check her."

"He might except for the fact that his wife's a widow."

One Way.
The wisest man we ever knew. Deferred until his little wife. She had good sense enough for two. And so they led a happy life.

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During those years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are under-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in our system.

If you have a pale face, yellow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women as well as men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—now and then just to keep in the pink of condition. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

JIM McPARTLAND AT VERDUN AND IN ALSACE LORRAINE

Letter to Members of The Courier
Force Indicates Former Co-worker Is Safe and Well.

James J. McPartland, a member of Company C, 321st Infantry writing to Messrs. Donagan, McKevitt and Smith of The Courier, tells of his experiences in France. He was formerly employed at The Courier. The letter follows:

"We hiked 13 days, covering a little over 200 miles, on our way to this town (Neuf) from the Verdun front. That was where we were when the armistice was signed.

"I was on two fronts, the first being up in Alsace Lorraine, and the other at Verdun, which was a little more interesting. We passed through quite a few good-sized villages going to Verdun. They were all shot to pieces. I suppose you read about St. Mihiel. That is one of the towns captured in which the Americans played a part. It is about the size of Connelville and it looks like a sieve.

"I certainly was a target for the big guns and from the looks of it there must have been some very heavy street fighting. We passed over a pontoon bridge built by American engineers. Just above were two ruins of two heavy concrete bridges, blown up by the hastily retreating Germans.

"A few of the business buildings in some of the towns had holes in the roofs but outside of that the towns seemed to look all right. This damage was more likely done by German planes. After we had discovered that we could get real fresh bread I got half a loaf for a half franc. It was the first and last fresh bread any of us had tasted since coming over here. I never knew how good plain fresh bread could taste.

service back home. I hope you are all over the influenza by this time. Must have been some town with everything closed. I have not seen a Center since I left home in July and I would give almost anything to get a copy. Just dig up a bunch of back numbers.

MYSTERY SHIPS TRAP U-BOATS

Boats of Fleet of British Decoy Craft.

FALSE DULWARKS MID GUNS

'Panic Parties' Fled Over Side as Submarines Approached, but Left Markers Behind—Stories of Encounters With German Submarines Are Filled With Deeds of Heroism—Many Ruins Are Employed

One of the most exciting chapters of the war against U-boats is a series of accounts of notable engagements between British decoy ships and the submarines made public by the British admiralty. While the whole story of the part played by these decoy vessels, "mystery ships," or "Q" craft has not been revealed it is evident that several of them were used to lure the undersea craft to destruction.

Some incidents in this campaign already have been made known, dealing chiefly with a few of the exploits of Commander Gordon Campbell as master of the decoy vessels, but others to which he and other captains participated, now are available. That at least a small fleet was used in this work is evident from the fact that Campbell at different times appears as the master of the Farnborough, the Pargust, the Dunraven and the Q-5.

The prize, another decoy ship, was commanded by Lieut. William B. Sanders, and the Stock Force by Lieut. Harold Anten.

Full of Heroic Deeds. Stories of the encounters between these ships and the U-boats are filled with deeds of heroism. In instances in which the discipline of the British navy was displayed under trying circumstances. For many months the decoy ships heavily armed but with their guns hidden behind false bulwarks steamed zigzag paths in the seas which were the hunting grounds of the submarines.

In their character of fast colliers or slow cargo craft they presented to the submarine commander an inviting object of attack but once he was well within range of the British guns the decoy ship was transformed into a fighting craft bent on destruction.

It was dangerous work requiring a high order of courage for the submarine must be fired near before the guns could safely begin their work. Many times the Hun frequently has sent his torpedo home and the decoy ship has disappeared sometimes on fire and part of her crew wounded. In all conditions the battle was for life and often the submarine destroyed.

'Panic parties' was one of the names practiced by the decoy ships commander to lead the submarine along. When the mystery ship was torpedoed these panic parties took to the boats, apparently abandoning their vessel but in fact leaving on board another crew to man the guns and finish the submarine if it came near enough.

The first encounter mentioned by the admiralty occurred in March 1916 when the Farnborough, disguised as a collier, was attacked by a submarine. The "panic party" took to the boats and the submarine closed in to about 500 yards. The Farnborough opened fire on her. The U-boat submerged and the Farnborough passed over her dipping depth charge. The submarine resurfaced sending a message and five rounds were fired into her at nearly point blank range and a very to the bottom of the sea.

Sunk by Gunfire. Prior to that action the Farnborough had cruised throughout the entire winter without being attacked. Within a month the Farnborough coasted another submarine near enough to sink her by gunfire.

Commander Campbell later was transferred to the command of the Q-5 and in the following February 1917 his vessel was torpedoed by a submarine which eventually approached so near that it was in the "Farnborough" behind the Q-5 and the Q-5 climbed out of the water. The submarine was sunk with her crew and her crew poured into the destroyers towed the Q-5 in and beached her. For the exploit Victoria Cross was awarded to Campbell.

The decoy ship Pargust, with Campbell in command, was torpedoed on June 7, 1917, after disguised as a British merchant vessel. The submarine came within 50 yards of the Pargust which then opened fire on her with all guns. The submarine crew poured out of the conning tower and held up their hands in token of surrender but the U-boat steamed away trying to escape in the mist. The Pargust again opened fire on her and sank her with one man clinging to her bow as she went down. The decoy vessel was towed back to port by American destroyers. Two Victoria crosses were awarded for this successful action.

KID GLEASON IS NOW WHITE SOX MANAGER

Pepper Pot of Comiskey's Team Is Named as Leader.

It Was Not a Great Surprise to Many That Clarence Rowland Was Designated—Career of Both Men Outlined Briefly

"Kid Gleason of Philadelphia who was called the pepper pot of the White Sox during the years he had charge of them on the field has been named manager for next year in place of Clarence Rowland.

While it wasn't a great surprise that Comiskey had released Rowland it was a surprise that the new man was Gleason. It generally was supposed that Comiskey and Gleason were not even on speaking terms. In fact Gleason refused to join the Sox last year as coach. A job he had held a number of years.

Gleason will begin active service at the New York joint meeting. It may be recalled that when Comiskey felt compelled to make a change in management in midseason way back in 1909, he selected Fielder Jones, though according to accurate information he was not on speaking terms with Jones at the time.

Just why Rowland was dismissed is a matter which was not made public. Outside of saying that he felt it a matter of his best judgment in his effort to give Chicago the best possible ball club, it is the South side leader had nothing to say.

It will be the first attempt at building a new ball club, though the Sox will be in three years of age. The year and has served more than 30 years in the professional game as a player and a coach. He began his baseball career in 1887 as a pitcher with the Scranton PA club and later he came into a star second baseman. He was a member of the famous Lamorne Orbits from 1893 to 1895 and played with the New York Giants from 1895 to 1900. He ended his career as a player with the Philadelphia Phillies in 1907.

Rowland gained his ball fame as a bush leaver and a tall major league experience before coming to the White Sox in 1911. He had managed several clubs in the Third League and was the leader of the Third League club of the Third League when it was disbanded.

He had managed the White Sox in 1911 and 1912. Last year as a manager of the club he finished second.

TENNIS IS NOT ONLY GAME FOR ALEXANDER

Few People Realize That He Is Also Gaffer of Distinction.

Champion Is First-Class 'Trophoboot', Has Played Polo Is an Adept at Handling a Canoe and Has Played Baseball

Frederick B. Alexander, known to practically every tennis player in the country as the former international champion and with Harold Mackay a doubles champion in 1907-8, is an all-around athlete. Alexander is a native of Philadelphia and grew up in the country. He is a realer that Alexander is also a gaffer of distinction.

He who over Philadelphia's most famous tennis player in the national title event when Throckmorton held a two-set lead and his game battle against R. Lindley Murray which went five sets, is still fresh in the minds of followers of the tournament.

Alexander's activities are not confined to tennis by any means. He is a first-class trophoboot, has played polo, is an adept at handling a canoe, and a shell and played football and baseball in his youth.

Seven years ago Alexander dropped out of tennis completely. In the course of conversation with several golf devotees Alexander made the statement that most of the one who had been a thistle could become a fairly good golfer.

With little or no knowledge of the game of golf Alexander made his debut on a golf course which was taken up immediately by the other Alexander was forced to make good his word. It was a case of proving it all things.

At a golf course a golfer. He joined the Rumsen Country club and proceeded to play golf with the same avidity that characterizes his tennis play. By the end of the year 1918 Alexander had not only broken the golf record but had won the club championship against a first-class player. He has since then been successful in his golf career.

Just how Alexander has become a golfer is a story which is a realer. He just wanted to show you that he was a golfer. He has since then been successful in his golf career.

The THIRTEENTH COMMANDMENT.

RUPERT HUGHES

CHAPTER XX.

Duane did not speak till miles and miles of black road had run backward beneath their wheels. Then he rumbled, "What a fool I was to tremble of such a thing!"

More miles went under before he rumbled to say, "What were you dreaming of?"

He laughed, and did not answer for another while. Then he laughed again.

"Do you really want to know?"

"No, you couldn't hate me any more than you do, so I'll tell you. I said to myself that I would never be the man of my woman."

"I'm not sure I am sorry about my man," he said. "I wouldn't take the greatest pleasure in carrying him off for the woman I loved, but that I want her to take my gifts as gifts, not as a tax or a salary. Some of these women think they are doing a man a tremendous favor by letting him support them. That doesn't get me a little bit. I believe a man does a woman just as much honor as she does him, and sacrifices a blamed sight more. He gives up his freedom, and if she gives up hers she's only giving up something she doesn't know how to use anyway."

Daphne had rarely found a man who would talk to her with Duane's frankness, and if there is anything that interests a woman more than another it is to hear womanhood analyzed, even satirized. She was eager for more vinegar.

"You won't be shocked and angry?"

He asked.

"I don't think so."

"You don't know how pleasant it is to talk life and love to a woman who doesn't rear up and feel insulted at everything. At first you gave me a couple of low-downs, but they don't count, and if you do hate me a little more, why, so much the better. When I thought you had broken with Wimburn I said to myself, 'She's the one light in the world for me. I'm going to ask her to marry me.' But I was afraid to, for I was afraid of marriage, and then—Well, I'd better not—Yes, I will. I said, 'She believes that men and women are equal and have equal rights, and she's going to get out and hustle for herself, like a little man. Maybe she could learn to love me well enough to do a partnership of heart.' That's what I said to myself. You mustn't think it's because I don't want to cleave to one woman; it's because I do. But I hate handcuffs. Do you see? And now you know what I was dreaming of. What do you think of it?"

The answer to his long oration was complete silence. Duane waited for his answer, and not getting it, laughed harshly. "Well, that's that. The next number on our program will be a ballad entitled 'I Never Dream but I Bump My Head.' Go on! Merry Clay Wimburn on nothing a year and live miserably ever after."

She said nothing to this, either. Duane was in a wretched state of bafflement. He put the car to its paces, and it ripped through space at fifty miles an hour. Daphne had a terror added to the load of her nerves.

The car went bounding up a steep incline toward the verge of a headland cut in mid silhouette by the far-reaching searchlight of a car approaching from the other direction. Duane kept well to the outside of the road, but just as he met the other motor, a third car trying to pass it on the curve lurched into the narrow space with a blare like lightning and the eyes. There was a yelling and hooting of horns and a series of disaster.

Daphne bent her head and prayed for life, but without faith. Duane, half-blinded, swung his front wheels off the road and grazed a wall. The rear wheels were not quiet enough. The other car smote them, crumpling the mudguard and slicing off the rear lamp.

Daphne was thrown this way and that, and it seemed that her spine must have snapped in a dozen places. When she opened her eyes again the car was standing still. Duane turned to her with terrified questions, and his hands visited her face and her arms and shoulders. He held her hands fast and peered into her eyes while she promised him that she was not dead.

The car that had bested his did not return, but the other did, offering help from a safe distance till its identity was established. In the light of its lamp Duane got down and examined his own car. Besides the damages in the rear, it had sustained a complete fracture of the front axle, a twisted motor, and a shattered headlight.

The driver of the other car came up and joined the copper's inquest. He stared at Duane, and cried in the tone of an English aristocrat, "Goddamn your soul, ain't you Tom Duane?"

Duane, blinking in the light, peered at him and said: "Top! I can't see you, but the voice would be Wetherell's."

"Right-o; it's me. Oh, pardon me, you're not alone. Nobody hurt, I hope and pray."

"No, but we're pretty far from home and country."

"I see! Hum-m! Pity I couldn't get the number of the vehicle that hit you. I rather fancy I'll have to give you a hand, but that will wait—if you don't mind trusting yourself to bad company."

Duane lowered his voice anxiously. "Is it very bad?"

Wetherell put the mute on his voice. "As good as yours, I'll wager. But let's not go into family history. Come along and we'll take you to the next neutral port. That would be—"

"Yonkers."

"Oh, yes. I fancy those were the Yonkers we came through a few miles back. Well, come along."

Duane was embarrassed, but he could do nothing except take Wetherell to his car and introduce him to Daphne. "Miss Kip," he said, "I've got to present Mr. Wetherell. He wants us to ride with him as far as Yonkers. We'll get another car here."

Wetherell came close and said: "Did he say Mrs. Kip? I can't see you, but I hope you are the fascinating Mrs. Kip I met at Newport. Have you forgotten me so soon?"

"I am Mrs. Kip," said Daphne. "Oh, so sorry! I don't mean that either. But my Mrs. Kip was a stern—Lella was her first name. I called her Dedeila, you see. And she called me Samson. She was a—"

"She is my brother's wife," said Daphne.

"Oh, you don't tell me!" Wetherell gulped, and his abrupt silence was full of startling implications that alarmed Daphne, angered Duane, and threw Wetherell into confusion.

Duane helped Daphne to alight from the dædlic and transferred her to the other car, where Wetherell introduced them to a mass of shadow whose name, "Mrs. Bettany," meant nothing to Daphne and everything to Duane.

Duane arranged to have a wrecking crew sent out to his roadster, and chartered a touring car and a chauffeur for the trip into New York.

He sat back with Daphne and murmured prayers for forgiveness because of the dangers he had carried her into and for the things he had said. Daphne's nerves had been overworked. She had been rushed from adventure to adventure of soul and body. She had been invited to enter a career of gorgeous sin, and she had been swept along the edge of a fearful disaster.

Mrs. Chivvis met Daphne at the door. Her recent affection had turned again to scorn, and she glowered at Daphne, who crept to her room in helpless acceptance of the role of adventuress.

Tired as she was she could not sleep. The clangor of the morning called her to the window. A gray day it was.

Tired as She Was, She Could Not Sleep.

broke on a weary town. The problem of debt and food and new clothes dawned again. Everything was gray before her.

Widow whispered her to take Duane at his word and try the great adventure. How could it bring her to worse confusion than she found about her now? And then the morning mail arrived and brought her a large envelope addressed in a strange hand. She opened it and took from it a sheet of photographs.

Her father's image a dozen times repeated lay before her. The untouched proofs omitted never a line, never a wrinkle. One of the pictures looked straight at her. She recalled that once she had stood back of the photographer and her father had caught her eye and smiled just as the bulb was pressed.

She made him smile like that. What would his expression be when he learned that she had "listened to reason," ceased to be his daughter, and became Tom Duane's?

She shuddered back from the word and the thought. She forgot both in the joy of reunion with her father. All the philosophies and wisdoms and luxuries were answered by the logic of that smile.

She lifted his pictured lips to hers with filial eagerness and her tears pattered riotously on the proof. She was satisfied to be what the jeweler in Cleveland had called her to Clay Wimburn—"old Wes Kip's girl."

Suddenly she remembered Wetherell and his message to Lella. She felt so unwisely virtuous herself that it seemed her duty to go down and rebuke Lella for her apparent philandering at Newport. She was also curious to see how guilty Lella would receive the news that Wetherell had asked for her.

But she found Bayard at home for luncheon and she was neither mad nor mean enough to confuse Lella before him. And this was rather for his sake than Lella's.

Lella was just informing Bayard that the butcher had delivered the morning's order no farther than the freight elevator, and instructed his boy to send the meat up only after the money came down.

Bayard had no money and the charge of his situation was bitter. He snarled at Lella: "Tell the cub to take the meat back and eat it himself. Then I'll go over and butcher the butcher."

Lella dismissed the boy with a faint-hearted show of indignation. Then she came back and said, "And now we have no meat to eat."

Bayard was reduced to philosophy, the last resort of the desperate: "Well, the vegetarians say we ought never to eat meat anyway. We're car but my Lella's in grand company. Look at this cartoon of 'Lesare's in the Sun—Father Kaiser-bocker turning his pockets inside out and not a penny in them. New York city has to borrow money on short-time notes at high interest to pay its own current bills."

"Look at Europe. All the countries over there were stumbling along under such debt that they wondered how they could meet their interest on the next pay day. And now they are mortgaging their great-grandsons' property to pay for shooting their sons."

"It's the old Thirteenth Commandment that we've all been snatching to flinders. And, my God! what a punishment we're all getting! And it's only beginning."

They sat down to a pitiful meal—meatless, maidless, milkless—hardly more than the raw turnips and cold water of Colonel Sellers. Lella fetched what victual there was.

After the meal Bayard shrugged into his overcoat and left without kissing his wife or his sister goodby.

Daphne and Lella went out to the kitchen, set the dishes in the pan, and the pan under the faucet. Lella turned on the hot water. Daphne was glad to be at work.

"There's one good thing about a small meal," she chirped, "it makes less dishes to wash." Then, with as much trepidation as if she had been the accused instead of the accuser she faltered: "Oh, say, Lella, do you remember a man named Wetherell?"

Lella dropped a plate. She said it was hot. But other plates had been hot.

"Wetherell? Wetherell?" she pondered aloud, with an unconvinced uncertainty. "I believe I do remember meeting somebody of that name. English, wasn't he?"

"Very."

"Oh, yes. He was at Newport, I think. Why?"

"Oh, nothing. I met him last night and he thought I was you."

"How could he?" Lella gasped. "We don't look the least alike."

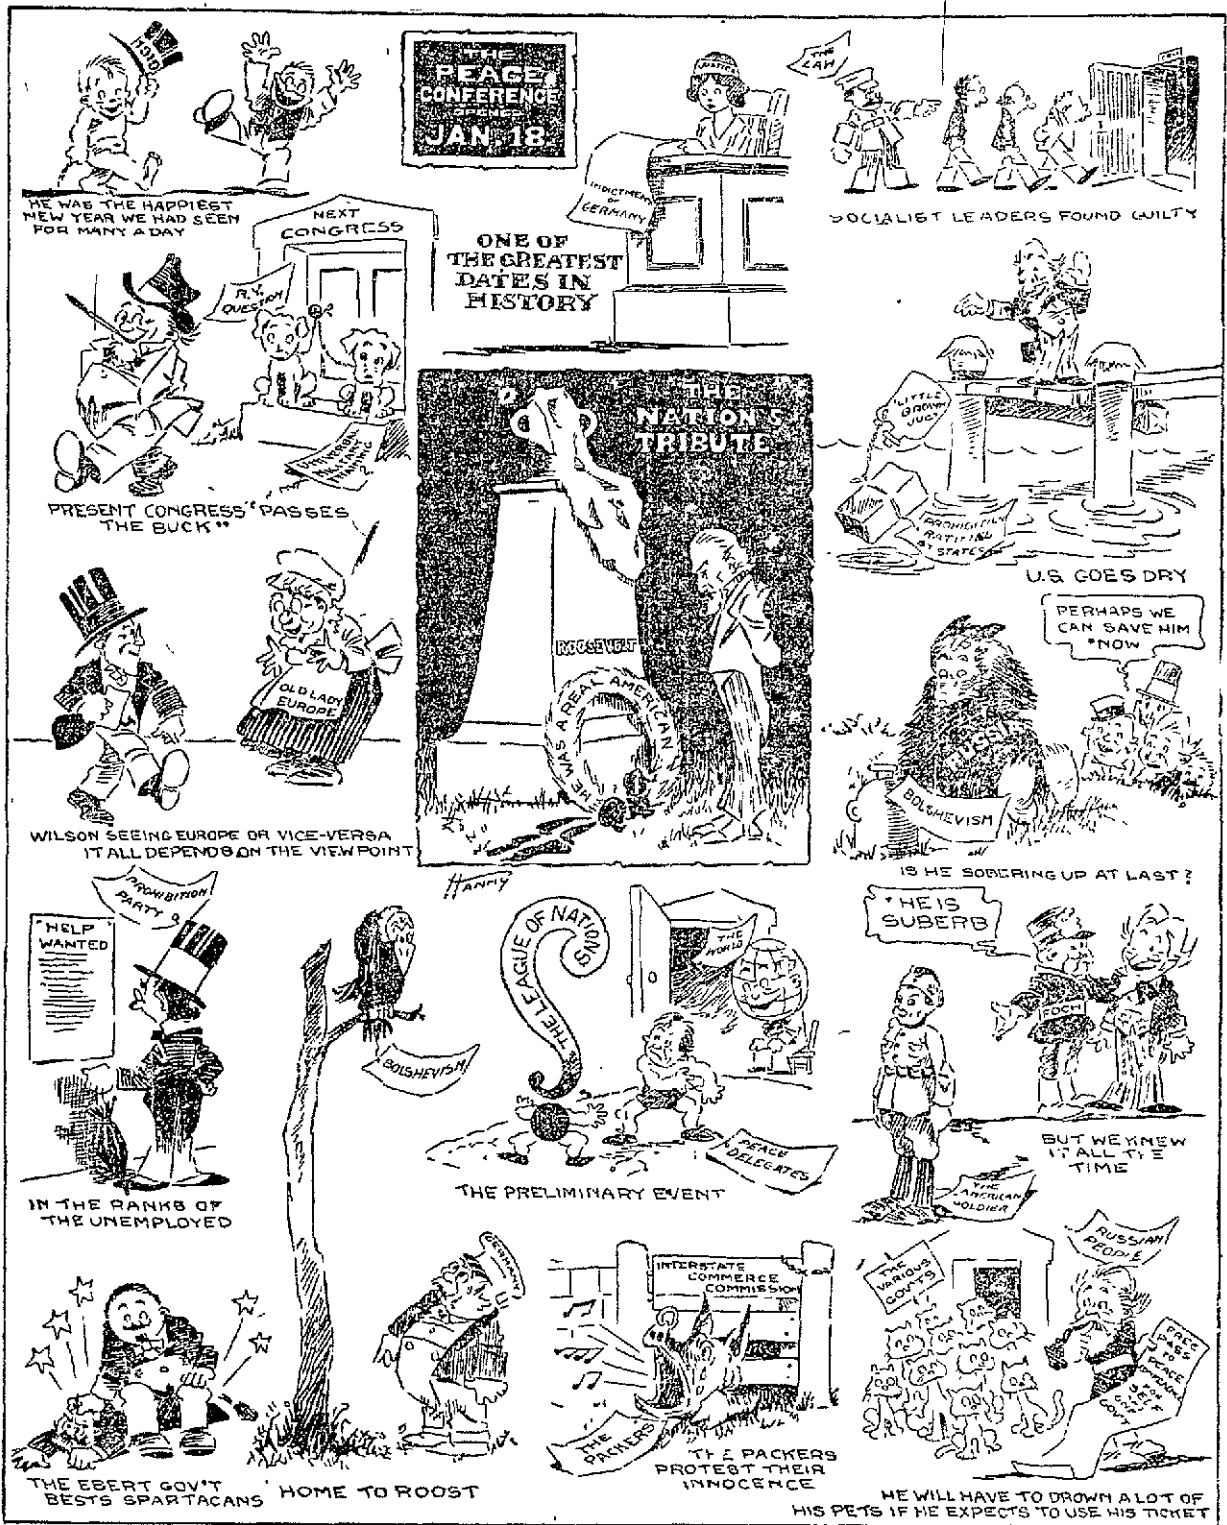

"It was in the dark."

"In the dark! Good heavens! Where?"

Already Lella had gained the weather gauge. Daphne had to confess her outing with Duane, the crash of the collision and the return to Yonkers in Wetherell's car. Lella took advantage of the situation to interpolate:

"Good heavens! How could you? You of all people! And with Tom Duane! What would Clay think?"

Daphne knew that she had no right to reproach Lella for having known Wetherell in Newport. She had no right even to suspect that Lella had overstepped any of the bounds of propriety. And still she was not convinced of Lella's innocence. She was merely silenced.

The True Business Man.

Your true business man is no narrow accumulator of riches, no piler up of bonds and clipper of coupons. He is a promoter of all that goes to make peaceful relations between men and empires. He strives not wholly for his own selfish ends, but for public ones. He believes in his nation and strives to do something for the community where he lives. He takes an interest in everything that is of interest to that community, knowing that his efforts are sure to bring their suitable reward.

To a business man of Boston, Pierpont Morgan said not long before his death: "My aim is to help build up our country and make our securities so sound that the people of foreign countries will feel compelled to invest their money in them."

Said Wendell Phillips of a noted Boston merchant, whose funeral oration he pronounced:

"It was not what he gave away that marked him. Others give liberally—our merchants have open hands. He not only believed the universe was sunny; he brought sunshine with him when he came. His hand was stretched out to spread the ideas which bear good for the future, whose value few see, whose influence many dread."—Boston Globe.

New Derivative.

"Mrs. Fangle is a homeopathist, isn't she?" remarked an old lady, during a call on a neighbor.

"No, I don't think she is," was the reply. "She's very seldom at home when I call."

Member of Present Third Class Is Elected Captain—He Is Powerful Defense Player.

The members of the Naval Academy football team have elected Arthur C. Ewen of New Hampshire, a member of the present third class, captain for next season. His position is right end, which he has played successfully two seasons. He is a powerful defense man, and also has done his part acceptably in forward pass plays. He is the only member of his class who received the "A" this season and will play next year.

Seventeen players who won letters and numerals this season will be available next year, besides Graves, a regular end last year, who has been kept out of the game this season by injuries. The squad also will be able to draw from a new class of a thousand members.

Fewer Students.

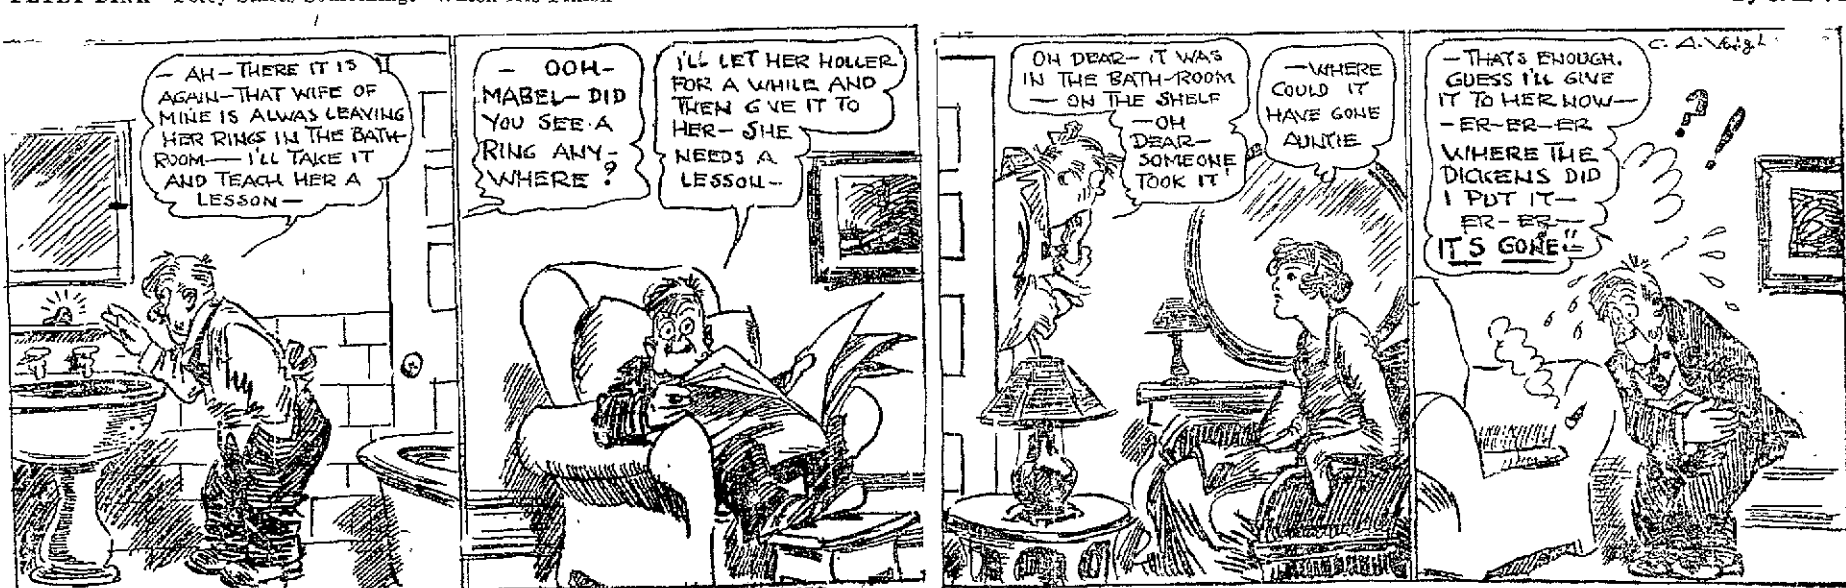

War and the industries made necessary by war have had the effect of depleting the student bodies of English universities to an extent that will be serious this year. At the University of Birmingham, one of the most modern and progressive seats of learning in Britain, where scientific training is a specialty, all the graduates who received the degree of bachelor of science this year were women.

South Now Makes Pottery.

The effort to establish in the Southern states a pottery for the manufacture of high-grade ware has, after many years, at last been successful. In 1917, for the first time, white ware was manufactured in the South. The Southern Pottery (Inc.), began to operate at Erwin, Tenn., a ten-kiln plant for the manufacture of semi-vitreous porcelain tableware, using domestic clays exclusively.

THE SALE of WHITE

Begins Wednesday, February 5th—Ends Saturday, February 15th. Ten Days of Exceptional Value-Giving in All Lines of White Merchandise.

Every thing will be carefully arranged so selections may be made easily and quickly, and all savings will appear in plain figures.

The event is planned to continue for 10 days but many of the most desirable and most closely-priced lots will be exhausted long before that time. So protect yourself and insure best selection by choosing this week. Gold Bond Trading Stamps will be given in addition to all reduced prices. See that you get one for every 10 cent purchase. They pay 4% in merchandise or 3% in cash on every $100 you spend.
